

SAFETY INFORMATION FOR SNORKELLERS

The underwater environment is exciting and beautiful, but it can be dangerous if you ignore your snorkelling supervisor or instructor's directions.

Please carefully read the following information and speak to your instructor about any concerns before going into the water.

~ If you cannot swim or have not snorkelled before let your snorkelling supervisor know.

~ Snorkelling can be a strenuous physical activity, even in calm water.

~ There are serious risk associated with some medical conditions, especially with cardiac conditions, asthma or diabetes.

~ If you have medical concerns, please speak to the snorkelling supervisor.

~ Older people may have a higher risk of injury due to medical conditions, whether diagnosed or not.

The following safety tips can help

~Use a flotation device to reduce the amount of physical exertion required in the water.

~Snorkel with a buddy or participate in a guided tour so you can get help if in distress.

~Stay close to supervising staff or other support.

~Know how to communicate with the lookout with hand signals and don't delay if you need help.

~Snorkel within your ability.

~Always listen for and follow instructions from the snorkelling supervisors, instructors and lookouts.

Experienced snorkellers are also at risk

~If you take repeated deep breaths before diving and try to stay under water for as long as possible, it's called 'breath-hold diving' and it can lead to unconsciousness, serious injury or death.

~If you plan to breath-hold dive, you must let the snorkelling supervisor know.
